Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Saturday 01 May 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Sunny spells and showers Sunday. Wet and windy Monday.

This Evening and Tonight:
Showers mostly dying out, though a few persisting in the northwest. Clear spells and light winds allowing frost to develop for many, as well as a few fog patches.

Sunday:
Sunny spells for most. Scattered showers developing, one or two of these heavy during the afternoon. Temperatures still below average, though feeling warm in sunshine and light winds.

Outlook for Monday to Wednesday:
A bright start, but becoming wet and windy for most Monday, strongest winds in the south. A return to sunshine and showers from Tuesday. Remaining chilly with some night frost.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.